

2018 Training priorities

As we begin another year, it is important to reinforce the importance of training to maintain the highest levels of expertise required to maintain our competitive advantage.

Edwards provides technical and business development training on a broad range of general and product specific topics. We have recently refreshed our calendar and recommend that you visit our training portal to book early at:

<https://learning.edwardsfire.com/>

Credentials are an important indication of commitment to high standards. NICET certification is generally recognized to be one important gauge of industry knowledge. NICET recognizes training partners that prepare candidates for all levels of NICET examination. Their partners offer courses regionally for your convenience. Updated partnerships and training calendars can be accessed at:

<https://www.nicet.org/jobstraining/training-partner-listing/>

We strongly recommend that continuing education become part of the culture for all involved in fire safety.

Should you have specific questions about Edwards training, please contact your representative for details and assistance.